It's quick, easy, and convenient!

TRSL has online calculators that let you get an unofficial estimate of your retirement benefits. These calculators are provided as a service to help you better understand what retirement income you may expect from TRSL. To use any of these calculators, just click on the calculator icon at the top of any TRSL webpage.

Regular Plan Benefit Calculator – gives an estimate based on service retirement for Regular Plan members. The estimate does not include credit for eligible leave, which is added after retirement. This calculator should not be used by Plan A or Plan B members.

Optional Retirement Plan (ORP) Comparison Calculator – employees in higher education with less than five years of service credit may be eligible for the ORP. The calculator compares benefits of the TRSL Regular Plan and the ORP.

Social Security Benefit Calculators – residing on the website of the Social Security Administration, these calculators help you estimate potential Social Security benefits. Note that your Social Security benefits may be reduced if you receive a TRSL benefit.

The calculators provide estimates only.

The calculators use data you enter and do not compare it against your actual member account. They are not connected to the TRSL database, which stores your account data. The accuracy of your estimate depends on the accuracy of the information you enter. The latest information provided to you by TRSL is on your annual member statement. If you are within three years of retirement, TRSL strongly suggests that you submit a Benefit Estimate Request (Form 10) to request an estimate based on your account information. This form is also available online.
